I currently have a Macbook Pro, and Surface Pro 7 and a Surface Go. Macbook Pro is used for all professional work, Surface Pro 7 is mainly used when I am travelling due to its weight and form factor, and Surface Go lies in my car and I use it for random surfing and checking mails /office communication when I go to cafes or restaurants.

I was looking for a new laptop for personal use at home, specially when lying in bed or sitting on the couch. Surface Pros screen is a bit small for long usage and is best used when sitting on a table. I did a lot of research and shortlisted Macbook Air, Thinpad X390 and a few other laptops from Dell, HP and Lenovo. But eventually decided to go for Surface laptop 3 and have not been disappointed.

Pros:

Premium Device - Recommended

Use this laptop as an all-purpose machine. Handles my music production, document-work, and light gaming (think Valorent/CS Go) with ease.
Port selection is limited, so you might need a dongle to extend your connectivity.
Battery life is decent, though competing laptops like the XPS do offer more. Touch is fantastic.
Keyboard typing experience and the glass trackpad are a pleasure to use.
Overall - Recommend.

Average Keyboard and display.

Reviewed in India on 6 November 2020
Colour: Platinum Size name: 8GB/128GB SSD Style name: 10th Gen Intel Core i5
Pattern name: Laptop Verified Purchase

I use the laptop typically for word processing and media streaming. I have not used it for processor intensive tasks. Here I have compared the Surface to the Macbook Air 2020. The keyboard is just average. I have compared it to the Apple Macbook Air (2020) whose keys feel much more tactile and sturdy. The Macbook does not miss a single keystroke, but on the Surface Laptop 3 often keys do not register keystrokes. The issue is most prominent in the Spacebar key. It does not register keystrokes when the key is pressed on the sides. I have documented this issue in the attached video.
The touchpad while better than most midrange laptops, is subpar compared to the Macbook Air. The Macbook touchpad is much more responsive.
The screen of the laptop is also very reflective. The touchscreen feature is not of much use for the Surface Laptop is atypical clamshell laptop.

Don't buy expensive products from amazon

Reviewed in India on 5 February 2021

I had a terrible experience buying this product from Amazon. The machine I received was a used one with the screen locked with some user credentials. The return and refund process has also been very painful. I had to spend close to 2 hours spread over 2 days to the customer service team. The return pickup was completed after 2 days and I am still awaiting my refund. My learning from this episode "Don't buy expensive products from amazon". They don't have the bandwidth to handle it.

Microsoft Surface Laptop 3

Reviewed in India on 30 January 2021

Colour: Platinum Size name: 8GB/128GB SSD Style name: 10th Gen Intel Core i5

Pattern name: Laptop Verified Purchase

It's highly overrated. Only three great features are top grade hardware, bloatware free Windows OS and a design to flaunt. Keyboard is great.

Doesn't have Thunderbolt port. And trying to match Apple hard drive spacewise is ridiculous. macOS and associated necessary softwares bundle takes much less space compared to Windows OS.

128gb for MacBook should be compared to 256gb in Windows (primarily due to its never fixable and unwieldy registry).

Get the new MacBook with generation M1 chip if you want to get maximum value for money in this cost range. Both Dell and Microsoft Surface remain too overpriced under current circumstances when Apple is trying to penetrate mid level market.

For this laptop don't store anything but essential software in hard drive. Have to depend on
